GERMANS STILL HELD AT STALINGRAD

CHANGE OF TACTICS ANNOUNCED

STALINGRAD still holds out against the reinforced masses of German Panzers and infantry, and from ruined house and factory Soviet troops pour a withering fire into the German ranks, slowly reducing the defences house by house. After many days of stalemate, the Soviet midnight communiqué says the Germans have penetrated two streets, but without achieving any tactical advantage.

A German military spokesman stated last night: "The strategic objective at Stalingrad has already been achieved. It will no longer be necessary to send German infantry and assault engineers into the battle. The finishing touches will now be entrusted to heavy artillery units and Stukas."

The relief armies from the north-west and south retain the initiative, but progress is slow, and there is no certainty that they will be able to raise the siege of the ruined city.

In the Caucasus German progress is stopped, and at Voronezh Russian troops are on the offensive, while in the north the Russian fleet is reported to have sunk two German transports.

BATTLES FOR BLACK SEA PORTS

MOSCOW, Thursday.—Reuter's Moscow Correspondent says: "Soviet guardsmen, hurling back the most dangerous German attempt yet made to split Stalingrad's defences, were to-day defiantly pounding the Germans with new batteries of field guns rushed across the Volga. The latest despatches say that the garrison has considerably strengthened its defences in the last twenty-four hours after recapturing several important streets in the industrial suburbs. This news comes after a critical day, when the Germans almost succeeded in forcing a break-through to the Volga.

"North-west of Stalingrad Marshal Timoshenko's relief army has struck another hard blow at the German panzer screen between the Don and the Volga. One of his tank units has smashed a breach in the German defences and caused havoc behind their lines. In the last seven days of Marshal Timoshenko's offensive here Soviet troops have killed 4,600 Germans.

OTHER FRONTS

"Soviet troops in the Caucasus, after making a slight withdrawal in some sectors, have now stemmed the German advance at Mozdok, and in the mountainous region to the south have considerably improved their positions. At the other end of the Caucasus battlefield the Red Army has recaptured three villages and several important heights south-east of Novorossisk.

"At Rzhev, north-west of Moscow, General Zhukov is renewing his offensive. The Germans have brought up fresh infantry and tank divisions, and are attempting to dislodge Soviet troops from their positions on the outskirts of the town. Rzhev itself is ablaze, with hardly a single house still standing. What remains of the town has been converted into a network of German strongholds.

"The Germans have been dislodged from two important heights on the Bryansk front, according to Soviet front-line dispatches. All counter-attacks were driven off at a cost to the Germans of 600 men killed."

"Nowhere in the factory settlement at Stalingrad have the Germans made any headway," states a Red Star front-line report. "Our troops are consolidating themselves in the streets they have recaptured."—(Reuter.)

Reuter's Stockholm Correspondent says: "Marshal Timoshenko's troops, after battering against the German lines for ten days north-west of Stalingrad, have broken through and crossed the Don River in force at several points. If these bridgeheads—probably in the neighbourhood of Kachalinsk, about 30 miles north-west of Stalingrad—can be widened, a serious threat to the Germans will rapidly develop."

SOVIET COMMUNIQUE

MOSCOW, Thursday.—To-night's Soviet communiqué stated: "During October 8th our troops fought the enemy in the areas of Stalingrad and Mozdok. No material changes took place on the other fronts. In the Baltic Sea our warships sank two German transports totalling 12,000 tons."

"North-west of Stalingrad artillery duels took place, and in some sectors attacks by small German forces were repelled.

"In the area of Mozdok our troops repelled enemy attacks. Soviet troops captured one armoured car, 28 machine-guns and other booty.

"In the area of Sinyavino over one regiment of German infantry, supported by tanks, launched six unsuccessful attacks against our positions during the day. All were repelled."

LATE NEWS

AID FOR RUSSIA

The United Nations must render the utmost measure of assistance to the Soviet Union, and whether that assistance be through the furnishing of arms, equipment or supplies, or by means of the diversion of the German armies forced by a new theatre of operations, the fullest measure of every means of help will be given, said Mr. Sumner Welles, U.S. Under-Secretary of State, speaking at the dinner of the National Foreign Trade Convention in Boston last night.

"I not only believe we are going to win the war," he said, "but I know that however long the struggle may be, however mountainous the obstacles which must yet be overcome, the American people will never lay down their arms until final and complete victory is won by the United Nations."

The translation into terms of reality of the promise of freedom for all people was the final objective, and the clearer they could make the outlines of peace the firmer would be their determination to attain it, and the stronger their will to win the war.

AUSTRALIAN PUSH

Australian troops now control all but a few miles of the southern flank of the Owen Stanley Mountain range in New Guinea, says a Press Association-Reuter message.

They are still advancing on the 6,500-foot gap in the centre of the range in pursuit of the Japanese. The narrow path along which they are advancing is cut through dense jungle. When they reach Kokoda, where the Japanese may make a fighting stand, they will only be about 50 miles from the important Japanese base at Buna, on the north-east coast of New Guinea.

PERMITS TO STAY IN THE NORTH

IMMIGRATION ORDER

THE British Home Secretary, Mr. Morrison, stated in the House of Commons yesterday that, subject to exceptions for children and persons in the service of the Crown, all British subjects who were not ordinarily resident in Northern Ireland on January 1st, 1940, will be required, if they desire to take up residence there, or who continue to reside there for longer than six weeks, to obtain permits. The permits will be issued for six months, or for duration of the employment specified, whichever is less.

THE OBJECT

The Minister was replying to Sir Hugh O'Neill (C., Antrim), who asked whether he was prepared, in the interests of national security, to take measures to control immigration into Northern Ireland. During the past two years, he (Mr. Morrison) said, there had been a considerable influx of persons normally resident elsewhere, and it had been decided to take power, by a defence regulation, to institute a system of control over persons coming to Northern Ireland, whether from Eire, Great Britain, and elsewhere, and to require them to give particulars as to their address or occupation. Unless there were security objections in individual cases permits would be granted for so long as their services were needed to applicants already in occupations, and to those who in future came into Northern Ireland to take up work. They would also be granted to those who ought to be allowed to remain there on compassionate or other special grounds. The immediate objective of the scheme was to deal with war conditions, but it was also contemplated that it would be of value on the termination of hostilities for the purpose of reinstating in employment demobilised men from Northern Ireland who joined the forces as volunteers. At such a time it would be right to give to the demobilised volunteers preference in the labour market over those newcomers. The scheme would be kept in existence for a reasonable time after the end of the war.

Sir Hugh O'Neill—Can you say whether these regulations will give power to deport people who have come in since January, 1940, and in respect of whom it is not thought desirable to give permits?

Mr. Morrison—Yes; there is no obligation on the Northern Ireland Minister of Home Affairs, acting for me, to grant a permit, and it can be withdrawn at any time. I am assured that the Minister of Home Affairs in Northern Ireland will be reasonable in the exercise of this power.

STORMONT WELCOME

Mr. Morrison's statement was read in the Northern Ireland House of Commons by the Prime Minister, Mr. J. M. Andrews, who said that the arrangement would be welcomed, and expressed the appreciation of the Northern Ireland Government for the consideration given to the matter by the Government in London.

Mr. Nixon asked if the Premier would continue the good work of restraining his Cabinet colleagues and some members of the Government from going to Eire, sometimes in doubtful company.

Mr. Andrews—I would remind the House that this is a statement made by a Secretary of State in the British Parliament, and as a matter of courtesy I have read it to this House. I have nothing further to add.

Mr. Nixon—I endorse what the Premier said, but I was asking if he would take further steps.

NEW PARTY MEETING

LEADER CHALLENGED

A further explanation of the programme of Alltiri na h-Aiseidighe, the new Authoritarian Party, was given by its leader, Mr. Gerald Cunningham, at a meeting last night at its headquarters, 27 South Frederick street, Dublin, attended by about thirty young men and women.

The system of government which they would set up, he said, would involve the abolition of all political parties, except one, which would be the National Party. There would be a Chamber of 100 members, of whom 50 would be elected by vocational bodies, and 35 by the National Party. These 85 would elect a leader, who would hold office for seven years, and the leader would nominate the remaining 15 members.

"We must have complete acceptance of the power of Alltiri na h-Aiseirighe," he said. "We must have power to compel everybody to co-operate in carrying out its programme."

An elderly man, who wished to explain his personal programme for stopping all exports, was refused a hearing and left the meeting as a protest. Several speakers expressed themselves as dissatisfied with the authoritarian nature of the programme. One of them challenged the leader to a debate on Sunday night at 8 o'clock at Mansfield's corner, and the leader said he would consider it.

ROUAULT PICTURE

CURATOR'S POINTS

The Curator of the Municipal Art Gallery, Mr. J. F. Kelly, in a statement yesterday about the Rouault picture, said that, as one of the functions of the Art Advisory Committee is to determine whether a work offered is suitable or not for the Gallery, he did not wish to make any statement as regards the æsthetic merits of the piece, but adverting to the various references which have appeared, he suggested that there is need for clarification on some points, viz:—(1) To call the piece an oil painting is not a fair description; (2) the work was offered on loan to the Gallery; (3) while it was on approval here, and before the purchase was effected, it was intimated to the Friends of the National Collections that it was unlikely that the Art Advisory Committee would recommend acceptance of the offer; (4) of the oil paintings on exhibition in the Municipal Gallery, about half the number were executed in the present century.

LICENSING BILL TALKS

A deputation from the Grocers' Assistants' Union will meet the Minister for Justice (Mr. G. Boland) next week to discuss the Licensing Bill. There will also be a general meeting of grocers' assistants to consider their line of action in view of the proposed new trading hours.

PLANS FOR RACING COMMISSION

FIRST MEETING SOON

By the Sporting Editor.

FIRST meeting of the Commission on Irish Racing will be held in Dublin on October 20th. It is planned to sit for three days during that week, and to take evidence from the Bloodstock Breeders' and Horse Owners' Association, certain representative owners and owner-trainers, metropolitan racecourse spokesmen and racing journalists.

The Commission, which has been set up by the Irish Turf Club and the Irish National Hunt Steeplechase Committee to report on the present and future conduct of Irish racing and to make recommendations, consists of seven members of those bodies, under the chairmanship of Viscount Adare. It proposes to take evidence from every section of the racing community.

CHRISTMAS

Lord Adare told me last night that the Commission may finish its work by Christmas, but I doubt very much if that will be possible, in view of the ambitious way it is setting to work and the exhaustive nature of the inquiries which it intends to pursue. An example of the thoroughgoing way in which the question of racing reform is to be considered is contained in the fact that governing bodies of horse-racing in the United States, New Zealand and India have been asked to submit information about their constitutions, their experience of totalisator betting, their relations with bookmakers, and the exercise of their controlling functions generally.

This information, together with a certain amount of written evidence submitted by enthusiasts for reform, is provisionally scheduled for examination as the Commission's first work on the morning of October 19th; but, if it is at all extensive, a great deal more time than that may have to be given to it. Probably, too, the representatives of the Bloodstock Breeders' and Horse-owners' Association will require more than the afternoon which has been allocated to them. On the other hand, the racing journalists' meed of advice may be so brief (so admirably summarised!) that little time will be occupied with them.

MANY FIELDS

While it is obvious that Lord Adare and his colleagues are anxious to push on with their job expeditiously, they realise, I think, that in the initial stages it will be difficult to lay down a very strict order of either witnesses or times. Some evidence will open up fields of investigation which may require the calling of witnesses not already on the schedule. The accumulated evidence of certain weeks may require cool examination in manuscript before arrangements are made for the Commission's next sitting.

The Commission's procedure will have to evolve and not be restricted by elaborate standing orders.

I understand that the Commission expects to consider such involved questions as the setting up of a holding company to take over all racecourses in Eire, if not the whole of the country. Such a proposal would necessitate the hearing of evidence on the financial experiences of several racecourse companies, and the examination of experts on the capitalising of any suggested scheme. Even more ambitious suggestions may have to be considered.

At least one week's sitting will be held in the South, probably at Clonmel, so that southern owners, trainers and racing people generally may be facilitated in giving expression to their views.

This afternoon the Council of the Bloodstock Breeders' and Horse-Owners' Association of Ireland will meet to consider its evidence for the Racing Commission.

SHOTS IN TIPPERARY

TWO YOUTHS ARRESTED

Two youths are detained at Tipperary Gardai barracks in connection with a shooting incident near Emly, where for some time past there has been trouble following the division of lands by the Commission on Ballyholohan estate. Men from outside areas employed by the Land Commission on the estate lodge in Tipperary town, and travel by lorry to and from the estate daily under Civic Guard escort. As the workmen were leaving the estate for their weekly half-holiday there were several bursts of rifle fire at the lorry. The shots appeared to come from across the fields opposite the estate entrance. The workmen and Gardai had narrow escapes.

BUILT WITH CLAY

SPECIMENS REACH DUBLIN

From twenty different parts of Ireland between Belleek, Co. Fermanagh, and Drimoleague, Co. Cork, specimens of clay used in building houses have been sent in to Mr. Frank Gibney, the Dublin architect who recently raised the subject of the potentialities of clay as a building material. His office mantelpiece, when an Irish Times reporter called yesterday, was as crowded with specimens as if it were a geologist's study. Some of the specimens were of the size of bricks and seemed of very hard and durable quality.

Some specimens were of the unmixed dried clay and others had pieces of straw mixed with it, apparently binding the material in something of the same way in which steel binds reinforced concrete. Many of those who sent specimens also sent descriptions of local houses built of clay, with notes about their resistance to damp and about their general condition. One County Fermanagh man volunteered the information that he had built such houses about 50 years ago, and that he knew clay-built houses still in good condition which had been erected about 1840.

Mr. Gibney has also had a letter from a man who served in Mesopotamia, giving details of clay houses in that region which had been built by the British Army during the last war. Mr. Gibney also recalls that most of the houses at Baalbek, in Syria, which he himself has visited, are built of this material. A memorandum is being prepared from the results of Mr. Gibney's appeal for information, and he hopes to use it to place before those who are interested in this subject.

A Noble Colonnade.

INDIAN PEOPLE'S FUTURE

MR. ATTLEE'S APPEAL

MR. C. R. ATTLEE, British Deputy-Prime Minister, yesterday appealed to the Indian leaders and people to "think again." Winding-up a debate on India in the House of Commons, he urged them to take the "way to life and not the way to death."

The debate arose on the second reading of the India and Burma (Temporary and Miscellaneous Provisions) Bill. An Independent Labour Party amendment that the bill should be rejected was defeated by 360 votes to 17.

In a large number of provinces, said Mr. Attlee, Indian Governments are functioning, and any moment when Indian politicians choose they can have complete control in the Provincial Governments, which deal with 95 per cent. of all the subjects in which the ordinary man is interested. When people say that nothing has been done since the mission of Sir Stafford Cripps they forget that immediately after that there was a big enlargement of the Viceroy's Council.

Running through all political life in India is a desire for self-government, which is perfectly right, and with which we sympathise. The trouble is that they do not all desire to be governed by the same people. One of the things that we are fighting this war for is the right of minorities to live. We must live and let live, though we don't agree.

The Congress Party, said Mr. Attlee, departed altogether from the methods of democracy and tried the methods of coercion. No one knows better than Mr. Gandhi that, under Indian conditions, civil disobedience leads to violence. It happened before. Terrible things happened. Mr. Gandhi himself expressed his repentance. It is a most regrettable thing that at the end of his life he should have again taken action that has resulted in the death of innocent people. We must have law and order.

PLEDGE RENEWED

The present deadlock, he said, was not between India and the British Government, but within India, and was a deadlock which only Indians could solve. We are not quitting India under anyone's orders. It is we who wish India to go forward, not to fly apart; to build, not to break up. Indian nationalism and the desire to see India's destiny directed by Indians' hands, free from all external control, is not confined to any one party in India. It is shared by all. To that aim, we in this country have solemnly pledged ourselves. Before India, and before the world, and in the name of the British Government, I repeat that pledge to-day.

Observing that "the forces of law and order have won the first and, we can only hope, the decisive round," Mr. Attlee said: "For all this tragic business the whole responsibility must rest with Mr. Gandhi and the Congress Party. Congress leaders have, by their own actions, put themselves out of court. There is no question of the Government of India entering into negotiations with them, or allowing others to do so, so long as there is a danger of a recrudescence of the troubles for which they have been responsible, or until they have abandoned the policy to control India by illegal and revolutionary methods, and are prepared to come to a settlement with ourselves and their fellow-countrymen. There is no prospect of appeasement of Congress in its present mood and outlook. It would only create greater difficulties with the Moslems and other parties, and would be regarded as a direct betrayal by the Army, police and Civil Service.

"The picture of India I give is dark and confused in parts, but, over most of the canvas, shaping itself not unhopefully. The problem is full of difficulties. They will be overcome."

MARINE INSURANCE

TRANS-ATLANTIC COST

Insurance on one hundred cargoes carried across the Atlantic last year would not fall very far short of a million pounds.

This estimate, given yesterday by a broker to the Irish Times, indicates the importance attached to the Irish war risks insurance scheme of Irish Shipping, Ltd.

At least 2½ million pounds is paid on premiums every year, and about half a million is collected in claims.

Marine insurance on cross-Channel traffic, as distinct from Atlantic trade, has been carried on in Dublin during the last four years by the Tower Assurance Company, Ltd. This is the only underwriting that has been done in Ireland during the past century and a half.

PAWNBROKING STRIKE ENDS

Following yesterday's conference between the employers and representatives of the Grocers' Assistants' Union, presided over by Mr. D. Sullivan, of the Department of Industry and Commerce, the pawnbroking strike was finally settled. Matters in dispute were concerned with meal hours, apprentices, and the men who were taken on since the strike began, twelve months ago. These men are to be dispensed with. The twenty-five pawn offices in Dublin will return to normal on Monday.

MEN WANTED FOR INTERROGATION

DETECTIVE'S DEATH

POSTERS have been placed outside all Garda barracks in Dublin and throughout the country intimating that eight men are sought for questioning by the Guards following the fatal shooting of Detective Sergeant Denis O'Brien at Ballyboden, Dublin, on the 9th September last.

The eight men are:—

Charles Kevins, born Tralee, Co. Kerry, February, 1918, a clerk; 5 feet 6½ inches, 8 stone; fair hair, grey eyes, slight build.

Timothy Drummond, born Tralee, Co. Kerry, July, 1907, labourer and greyhound trainer; 5 feet 9 inches, 12 stone; brown hair, grey eyes, oval face, medium build.

Liam Burke, born Belfast, 1919, a clerk; 5 feet 6½ inches; dark brown hair, blue eyes, round face, erect build.

Henry White, alias Anderson, born Belfast, 1916, a plumber; 5 feet 7½ inches, slight medium build; light brown hair, sallow complexion.

Francis J. Duffy, born Belfast, 1915, a fitter; 5 feet 4 inches in height, 9½ stone; brown hair, grey eyes, oval face, scar on right side of cheek.

Hugh McTeer, born Derry, 1917, a clerk; 5 feet 5 inches; fair hair, blue eyes, fresh complexion, scar on back of neck and both knees.

Thomas Kealy, born Celbridge, Co. Kildare, 1905, a labourer; 5 feet 9½ inches, 12 stone; brown hair, erect carriage, blue eyes, fresh full face, stout build.

REWARD OF £5,000

The poster also recalls that a reward of £5,000 has been offered by the Government leading to the apprehension and conviction of the persons, or any of them, who took part in the shooting of Detective Sergeant Denis O'Brien, of Rathfarnham, Co. Dublin, on the morning of September 9th. No arrests have been made yet in connection with the shooting.

DISMISSED STRABANE TEACHER

STORMONT QUESTION

Mr. J. Beatty (Labour), Pottinger, asked, in the Northern House of Commons yesterday, the Parliamentary Secretary to the Minister of Education if she was aware that Strabane and Castlederg Regional Education Committee had violated the Education Act of 1923 by refusing the legal request of 106 students for the establishment of Irish classes in Strabane Technical School; if the Ministry had informed that body that Irish was an approved subject under the Technical Attendance Grant regulations; whether the Ministry approved of this decision and this scandalous and unwarranted action of the majority of this Committee in dismissing from his post as principal of Strabane Technical Schools Mr. Thomas J. Carroll, who had recommended this class.

Mrs. Parker said she had received private notice of that question about 12.30 that day, and it was impossible for her to get in touch with her Ministry at that time, but, speaking personally, she would like to tell the hon. member that she saw the notice in the paper with reference to the matter, and her Ministry had no further information on it.

Mr. Beatty asked if the Secretary was aware that a number of students concerned were members of the American forces.

Mrs. Parker said that the Ministry had no official knowledge of what took place at the meeting in Strabane.

AXIS TROOPS BOMBED

Allied fighter-bombers, escorted by American fighters, attacked troops and transport in twelve raids along the Libyan coast line from Sidi Barrani to Derna, on Wednesday, says Reuter. Many Axis troops are believed to have been killed and wounded when the Allied aircraft attacked encampments and parading soldiers.

Two Messerschmitts were shot down and one Allied 'plane failed to return.

German radio last night claimed the destruction of two British aircraft on the Egyptian front. A fighter was shot down during a British sortie over the desert "no man's land," and the second 'plane was shot down during a "short, but violent," battle over the El Alamein area. Axis fighters were said to have intercepted a raid on an Axis convoy between Crete and North Africa by four-engined bombers, which were "forced to jettison their bombs."—(Reuter.)

Heavy bombers of the Royal Australian Air Force bombed Crete Harbour and Suda Bay on Wednesday night, says Reuter's Cairo Correspondent.

NORWAY EXECUTIONS

Nine more Norwegians were executed at Trondheim last night, says Oslo Radio. The executions were carried out after sentence of death had been passed by a military court.

A tenth person had his death sentence commuted to fifteen years' hard labour.—(Press Association.)

SENATE DISCUSSES LAND CREDIT

THE Minister for Finance (Mr. Sean T. O'Kelly) promised the Senate last night that he would provide the money if anyone could prove to him that agricultural credit was necessary in this country.

He was replying to Mr. J. J. Counihan's amendment—one of a dozen the House disposed of during the session—asking that the Central Bank be empowered to lend to the State, by way of land bonds, a sum not exceeding five million pounds for advancements to farmers who needed credit on the security of their lands. These advances, Senator Counihan suggested, could be repayed over a period of 38½ years by annuties of 4½ per cent.—3½ per cent. interest and 1½ per cent. sinking fund.

Sir JOHN KEANE objected to the amendment, which was defeated by 30 votes to 7, because it was not the function of the Central Bank to lend money to the farmers.

"ELECTION BID"

Agreeing with him, Mr. O'KELLY described it as "as hopeless a financial scheme as a man could produce." It was evident that the bidding for a general election was on, he said, although Senator Counihan's amendment was not a part of it, for he had been advocating agricultural credit for years. Others, however, had taken it up, evidently thinking that there was some good political move behind it, and that the farmers were "going to bite."

Introducing the idea, Senator COUNIHAN recalled that the Minister had indicated that he proposed to refer the matter to the Post-War Planning Committee for Agriculture, a committee in which, he said, neither he nor the farming community had any confidence.

The Minister, Sir John Keane and Mr. Liam Ua Buachalla condemned an amendment by Mr. P. F. Baxter which would empower the Central Bank to fix and publish, from time to time, the rate of interest to be charged by the associated banks, previously known as Irish banks' rate, and which would, after the appointed day, be known as the Irish Central Bank's rate, charged by the associated banks on advances and deposits.

Senator Baxter, Sir John said, took a cross-roads view of finance. What cause had been shown to control the price of money? The Banking Commission had pointed out the steady continuous fall in banking profits. Compared with other countries, the bank rates here were not high.

Mr. UA BUACHALLA objected, because the amendment would mean that the Central Bank would take over the whole banking business of the country—would mean, in fact, the nationalisation of all their social and economic interests; and Mr. O'Kelly refused to accept it because it asked for more control, which might be necessary some time, but not yet.

The amendment was rejected, and the House adjourned until 10.30 to-day.

BOMBS AND SHOTS IN BELFAST

A bomb was thrown at a police patrol between Upper Library street and Kent street, Belfast, late last night. Both policemen were injured. The patrol exchanged shots with the men who threw the bomb, but the men escaped in the darkness.

At about the same time Constable Wilson was shot in the stomach when shots were fired at Cullingtree road police barracks, which was attacked with two bombs on Wednesday night. Wilson was taken to the Royal Victoria Hospital and detained.

PROGRESSIVE YEAR

MOUNT STREET CLUB'S WORK

"If a club similar to the Mount Street Club were established in every county the Government would have no difficulty with the unemployment problem," declared Mr. J. Noctor, deputy chairman of the club, at the annual meeting held yesterday in the Mansion House, Dublin.

According to the report presented by Mr. J. J. Newcombe, the activities of the club included 300,000 hours worked by members in 1941, during which 296,605 tallies were exchanged. Provision was made for increased acreage of essential crops. Tillage operations comprised 33½ acres of wheat, 17 acres of oats, 8 acres of barley, 30 acres potatoes, and 4 acres vegetables. Farm dormitory accommodation was provided for 45 members, also accommodation for 40 members at the club's turf camp.

Limerick Centre report, presented by Mr. R. T. Hartigan, stated that, with 30 working members, a splendid response followed appeals in the Press for gifts, etc., for the starting of the club, and £1,116 had been collected from all sources, which included a gift of £250 from the Mount Street Club. 3,419 meals had been supplied to members from November 13th, 1941, to August 31st, 1942. Materials for most of the needs were supplied gratis by merchants and shop-keepers. Forty tons of turf and six tons of blocks were taken by the members, who paid for them by work.

Waterford Unemployed Men's Club report, submitted by Mr. T. R. Leonard, stated that the average daily attendance was 31 at the club.

Cork Unemployed Men's Club report, which was submitted by Mr. W. T. O'Sullivan, stated that steady progress had been made since its inception in March, 1941.

The Torch and Distaff Guild (I.W.W.U.) report, read by Miss H. S. Chenevix, stated that during the year 1,185 vouchers were sold, enabling members to get 3s. worth of groceries for 2s.

The reports were adopted, on the motion of the Lord Mayor (Alderman P. S. Doyle, T.D.), seconded by Alderman A. Byrne, T.D. Dr. H. Kennedy presided.

The U.S. War Production Board yesterday ordered between 200 and 300 of America's largest gold mines to be shut down to release manpower for work in copper and other war metal production.—(Reuter.)

CYCLE TYRE OVERCHARGES

At Longford Circuit Court, Judge Gleeson affirmed the convictions and fines, amounting in all to £150, with a total of six months' imprisonment and an order for payment of six guineas expenses, against James P. Murphy (farmer), Prucklishtown, Granard, on eight charges connected with alleged overcharging for bicycle tyres; and fines amounting to £20, with two months' imprisonment, against Patrick Eivers, labourer, in the employment of Murphy, in connection with the transactions.

DIEPPE PRISONERS IN CHAINS

BRITISH ULTIMATUM TO GERMANY

ACCORDING to a German Radio statement, the British prisoners captured at Dieppe were put in chains at noon yesterday.

The British War Office last night announced that "The German Government, having put into operation the illegal action threatened in the communiqué, the War Office announces that unless the German Government release the prisoners captured at Dieppe from the chains an equal number of German prisoners of war will be manacled and chained as from 12 noon Saturday, October 10."

GERMAN ANNOUNCEMENT

A German military spokesman last night stated:—"There can be no doubt that the measures announced in retaliation for the treatment of German prisoners, in violation of international law, have come into force."

According to a Berlin message received before the issue of the British War Office statement, "authoritative German quarters declare that the British attitude has so far failed to do justice to the fundamental problem."—(Reuter.)

Three hours after the German midday announcement, Britain issued the following warning:—"His Majesty's Government repeat the declaration that they do not, and will not, countenance any orders for the tying of the hands of prisoners of war taken in the field.

"The action of the German Government in taking reprisals against British prisoners of war in their hands is expressly forbidden by Article 2 of the Geneva Convention. Nevertheless, should the German Government persist in their intentions, His Majesty's Government will be compelled, in order to protect their own prisoners of war, to take similar measures upon an equal number of enemy prisoners of war in their hands."

The British and Canadian Governments are holding "urgent consultations" regarding possible reprisals for Germany's action in manacling Canadian and British prisoners captured at Dieppe, says an Ottawa message. The spokesman of Canada's External Affairs Department disclosed this at a Press conference to-day.—(Reuter.)

According to the Associated Press, a Canadian External Affairs spokesman said that no decision had been reached as to any reprisal steps against the Germans, but he added that the Canadian Government were particularly disturbed by the German wireless reports. Thousands of prisoners of war—the exact number is a secret—were confined in Canada, and most of them were believed to be Germans, including seamen, airmen and soldiers. Their treatment was in accord with the Geneva Convention, and they received the same rations and quarters as Canadian soldiers.

"UNSATISFACTORY"

The Germans on Wednesday stated that British troops bound German prisoners taken during the week-end Commando raid on Sark, and declared that "until the British War Office prove that it will issue truthful statements on the binding of German prisoners, and has acquired sufficient authority to see that its orders are carried out by its troops," the Dieppe men will remain in chains.

The British Government replied by warning Berlin that such action would be taken at her peril, and by pointing out that German and Italian prisoners of war in British hands exceed the number of British prisoners in Axis hands by 170,000. It added: "If Germany carries out this threat, the British Government will have to consider its future action."

This reply the German Radio commentator described as "unsatisfactory."

Article 2 of the Prisoners of War Convention, 1929, to which Germany was a signatory, states:—"Prisoners of war are in the power of the hostile Government, and not of the individuals or formations which capture them. They shall, at all times, be humanely treated, and protected, particularly against acts of violence, from insults, and from public curiosity. Measures of reprisals against them are forbidden."

Yesterday, following the news that the commando raid on Sark had confirmed suspicions that Britons in the Channel Islands had been deported to Germany, the Islands Refugee Committee was preparing for a flood of inquiries from islanders in England. An official told the Press Association that it takes many months for news to get through, and she was afraid that it would not be possible yet to ease anxieties. "But," she added, "we shall do all we can to get the names of the people deported."

Meanwhile, the Foreign Relations Department of the British Red Cross had cabled to the International Red Cross at Geneva asking for a list of the names of the people deported and the places to which they have been sent. Information cannot be expected at once, but will be issued as soon as it is received.

Lord Portsea, whose offer to take a food ship to the Channel Islands was declined by the British Government, told the Press Association yesterday that the deportations were "exactly what we have been asking for. There is no blacker page in our history than our abandonment of the islanders," he said. "The Government would not send food, and would not even send letters."

ULSTER UNIONIST COUNCIL

READY FOR ANY EMERGENCY

By amendment of its Constitution, the Ulster Unionist Council declares that its objects are: "To maintain Northern Ireland as an integral part of the United Kingdom; to uphold and defend the Constitution and Parliament of Northern Ireland; to bring together all Unionist Associations in Northern Ireland with a view to consistent and continuous political action; to act as a link between all such Unionists and parliamentary representatives, and to be a medium of expressing such Unionist opinion as current events may from time to time require, and generally to promote the interests of Unionism."

Announcing that the Constitution has been re-drafted, the Standing Committee, which met yesterday under the chairmanship of Sir Emerson Herdman, said that at the outbreak of war it was decided that political activities should cease, that the energies of loyalists should be directed towards winning the war, but that Nationalists and Republicans were not prepared to follow suit, apparently still believing that England's difficulty is Ireland's opportunity, and seemed to have redoubled their efforts towards having all Ulster brought under the Parliament in Dublin. The Unionists were again attending to organisation, so as to be ready for any emergency.

SCARED ABOUT HIS WIFE'S HEALTH

She Could Not Eat Meat or Vegetables

Away on active service, how this man looked forward to his letters from home. Yet how worried they made him with their accounts of his wife's sufferings. He now writes the following letter in gratitude at the speedy relief she has obtained:—

"My wife had an operation for internal trouble some months ago. Since then she has suffered great agony owing to pains in the body, often fainting after one of these bouts. She could eat no meat or vegetables. Only a fortnight ago, my son drew her attention to Rennies, and since then she has suffered no more pain, and can eat anything. I have been in the Services for two years, and every letter has been a nightmare regarding her health. I am more than surprised. Rennies are wonderful."
—R.G.E.

Digestif Rennies work in three ways. They contain antacids which neutralise acidity, absorbents which reduce stomach gas, and digestive ferments which actively aid digestion. Rennies become active at once, because they reach the stomach full strength—not weakened with water. All Chemists sell Rennies: 7d. and 2/- pkt.

A Government Order prohibits millers from milling any mixture of cereals which contains wheat, as the product would obviously be intended for the feeding of animals. It allows the Minister for Industry to allow wheat-growers who have been in the habit of milling flour or wheaten-meal for their regular employés to continue to do so within certain limits.

Double for W. O'Grady

A FEATURE of yesterday's racing at Limerick was the easy victory of Ruby Loch in the Munster National 'Chase. Mr. Corbett's mare had all her opponents well beaten in the closing stages, and she won with a lot in hand. W. O'Grady had a double event, winning the Adare Handicap Hurdle with Bricett, which he rode himself, and the Shannon Handicap with Grandace. Bricett challenged Barrymore before the straight was entered and scored by a length, while Grandace had to withstand strong challenges from Thursday and Glen of Hawthorn. There was another good finish for the Ardnacrusha Handicap, Glengormley, the mount of Newman, getting the best of it against Submarine and Mountain Loch. The 14lb. overweight which All Shell carried in the Limerick Plate proved his undoing; for, having looked all over a winner, he was run out of it by Cyldennis. Housewarmer was an easy winner of the Delmege 'Chase. Details:—

TO-MORROW'S RUGBY PROSPECTS

THE Old Belvedere-Wanderers' game at Jones's road to-morrow will give us an indication as to whether attacking three-quarter play has any chance at the present time of overcoming opposition which concentrates mainly on defence. Wanderers rely on a fine pack, close marking, and tackling, and Robertson's skill at kicking to keep them in the front rank of the clubs. Last season they almost succeeded in beating Old Belvedere in the Cup final, but the re-play, following a scoreless draw, showed a big difference in skill between the back divisions. At this early stage of the season Old Belvedere are seldom at their best; their backs take a long time to settle down, and their forwards alternate between good displays and very poor ones, indeed. Consequently, it seems probable that Wanderers will win this time, but if the Old Belvedere forwards could secure a bigger share of the ball in the tight there might be some extremely interesting Rugby.

Lansdowne v. Clontarf, at Lansdowne road, probably will have the merit of a close finish if little else; both sets of backs are poor, but such thrust as there is Clontarf have, and that may prove sufficient for a winning margin. As Dublin University are unlikely to settle down for some weeks to come, they are not at all likely to overcome a Bective team, strengthened in the three-quarter line by K. Doyle and D. Flanagan, both dangerous try-scorers. University College, however, should not find the Monkstown defence as rigid as that of Palmerston last week, and will probably open their winning account. Old Wesley will disappoint themselves and their followers if they fail to a Blackrock side still weakened by the absence of T. Chamberlain. After beating Lansdowne and U.C.D., Palmerston ought to make it three in a row against St. Mary's, but they will need all their best defensive qualities to do so.

FLYNN IN GOAL FOR DRUMCONDRA

The signing of E. Flynn by the Drumcondra directorate comes at an opportune time. Last season he gave grand displays in the Bohemian goal, and when, this season, he transferred to Cliftonville his departure was regarded as a serious loss at Dalymount Park. Much interest will be taken in his appearance at Tolka Park on Sunday against Dundalk. This is the main attraction of the week-end, and should provide the big crowd with one of the finest games of the season—if not actually the best.

Except for Flynn, there will be no change in the home team, but the Dundalk committee still are looking for a centre forward. They had hoped to obtain G. Wickham, the promising Sligo junior, but last Saturday he turned out for Distillery (Belfast). However, they expect to fill the vacancy before the close of the week.

The composition of the Rovers and Shelbourne teams for the match at Shelbourne Park has not been finally decided, but it is not likely that any alterations will be considered necessary. Against Drumcondra last Sunday, the Rovers' defence was badly at fault; a similar exhibition against the "Reds" would be a serious business for the Milltown team, which cannot afford to continue dropping points if they are to finish anywhere near the top of the Shield table.

Cork United, whose plans for the season will not be upset by the further restrictions on travelling by car, are at home to Bohemians. Unless they can finish off their much-improved forward play by strong and accurate shooting at The Mardyke they would run the risk of losing this game. Bray Unknowns and Limerick meet at Bray, and St. James's Gate have Brideville as opponents at Crumlin.

To-morrow—Shelbourne v. Shamrock Rovers, Shelbourne Park.

MINOR CUP OFF

The Junior Council of the F.A.I. last night decided, in view of the reply received from the Minister for Supplies regarding transport facilities, to postpone the draw for the Junior Cup in order to obtain the views of the clubs concerned; but the Minor Cup was abandoned for the season.

KILKENNY PAIR WIN GRANARD CUP

Thirty-two of the thirty-nine pairs who qualified played in the closing stage of the Countess of Granard Cup at Dun Laoghaire yesterday, and for the third time in ten years victory went to Kilkenny, Miss Mitchell and Miss Shearman having the very excellent score of 5 up. Bundoran also came prominently into the picture, Miss Cassidy and Miss O'Callaghan taking the second prizes with 2 up, and for the remaining prizes five couples tied with 1 down, the Dundalk pair, Mrs. van Dissal and Mrs. Lockington winning on the second nine.

The financial result for the Richmond National Institute for the Blind, taking everything into consideration, was remarkable, the subscriptions amounting to £129, which exceeded last year's total, and for the ten years over which the competition has extended the aggregate was thus brought to £979 13/-.

The four provinces were represented in the final, qualifiers coming from Bundoran, Tramore, Waterford, Sligo, Co. Louth, Dundalk, Cork and Kilkenny, in addition to a strong local representation. For the third year in succession Bray was represented by Mrs. C. F. Huet and Miss Peggy Dillon, while Miss Hynes and Miss Power were making their second appearance in the final for Tramore. Leading scores:—

Kilkenny (Miss Mitchell 16 and Miss Shearman 27), 5 up.

Bundoran (Miss Cassidy 24 and Miss O'Callaghan 36), 2 up.

Dundalk (Mrs. van Dissal 23 and Mrs. Lockington 15), Newlands (Miss Byrne 25 and Miss Halton 18), Headfort (Mrs. Conlon 27 and Mrs. McGill 27), Foxrock (Miss Seymour 24 and Mrs. Norman 34), Dun Laoghaire (Mrs. Corbett 15 and Mrs. Griffin 16)—tied with 1 down, Dundalk winning third prizes on second nine.

LOWER PRICES DEMAND

A public meeting under the auspices of the Dun Laoghaire Borough branches of the Irish Labour Party, held in Dun Laoghaire last night, deplored "the abnormally high price of essential foods whilst no compensation is provided to enable workers to meet these costs," and called upon the Government

ATTRACTIVE HOCKEY FIXTURES

The programme for to-morrow is an interesting one, for the meeting of Dublin University and Three Rock Rovers is always an attraction, while the strong Pembroke Wanderers' XI certainly should be well tested by the Corinthians' defence at Templeogue. The newcomers, St. James's Gate, have postponed their match with Portrane owing to the death of Mr. D. Parkinson's father, which occurred on Wednesday. Railway Union and Y.M.C.A., both unexpectedly beaten last week, ought to have a keen struggle at Park avenue in order to make up lost ground.

In losing by 3 goals to Wanderers, Trinity gave a most disappointing display, their inside forwards being completely dominated by the opposing halves, while their full-backs did not seem to settle down together. The moving of O. Lush from right-half to inside-left should add thrust to the attack, and it is likely that the team will do better against Rovers to-day. Even though the latter failed to beat Corinthians, they played well with an experimental forward line. The defence is more solid than that of Trinity, but they may find the pace a shade too fast, and the result is very open.

Even though the Corinthians' team is unevenly balanced, it does not capitulate easily. Nearly all the strength lies in the defence, and it should be a fine struggle between the home backs and halves and the Wanderers' forwards. One cannot visualise the Corinthians' attack making much progress against P. O'Keeffe, McNulty and Hanrahan; but a snap goal is a possibility, and consequently Corinthians have an outside chance of victory.

Y.M.C.A. have returned Sanderson to his usual post at centre-half, bringing R. Matheson up from the second XI at inside-right. As Railway are still faced with team-building problems, it looks as if Y.M.C.A. may collect the points on this occasion.

MICHAELMAS LAW TERM

MANY APPEALS

Already 34 appeals, many of them of more than ordinary interest, have been listed for the Supreme Court in the Michaelmas Law Term, which will open next Monday. This figure compares with 29 for the corresponding term of last year, and is a big jump on the numbers for the preceding three terms of the present year.

It had been found necessary to carry a few appeals over from the Trinity Sittings, including the Hafner shares case and the case stated in Cork Co. Council against the Commissioners of Public Works.

STATE RATEPAYER

The latter raises the question of the liability of the State to pay rates on houses of which they have control, but which are occupied by tenants for purposes other than State or public purposes. The houses are on the island of Haulbowline, which had been used as a Royal dockyard until 1923, when it was given to the Commissioners of Public Works, as agents of Saorstat Eireann. In March, 1929, its use as a dockyard was discontinued, but some persons formerly employed in the dockyard, or otherwise in the service of the State, were allowed to continue in occupation of houses on the island, pending a decision how the dockyard was to be used. The County Council obtained a decree against the Commissioners, and the Commissioners appealed, submitting that they are not liable.

The position of a married woman employer who had been committed to prison for failing to comply with an order of Cork Circuit Court to pay instalments of compensation to an injured employé under the Workmen's Compensation Act of 1934 will come before the Supreme Court from an order of the High Court quashing the order for imprisonment.

KIDNAPPING

Michael Edge, who had been a lieutenant of the Ordnance Corps, Islandbridge Barracks, Dublin, is, by certificate of the Court of Criminal Appeal, appealing from the refusal of that Court of his appeal from his conviction in the Circuit (Criminal) Court, and sentence of six months' imprisonment, on a charge of kidnapping a boy of about 14½ years by "unlawfully carrying him away and secreting him against the will of his lawful guardian." The Circuit Judge had given a certificate allowing an appeal on grounds that raised the question whether the count of kidnapping, as framed in the indictment, disclosed any criminal offence; and the Court of Criminal Appeal gave a certificate that their decision involved a point of law of exceptional public importance, and that it was in the public interest that an appeal should be taken to the Supreme Court.

The construction of a section of an Act of 1864 will arise on a case stated by Judge Davitt in a claim for payment on the sale of a cow that, being slaughtered, was found to be diseased. The case had been in the Supreme Court before, on the construction of the Public Health Act, and had been remitted to the Circuit Judge; and on the further hearing in the Circuit Court a new point was raised by counsel that, under Section 18 of the Dublin Improvement Act, 1864, it was illegal to bring into or exhibit for sale in any market within the Borough of Dublin cattle unfit for human food, and that the consideration for the buyer's cheque was illegal and the money was irrecoverable.

The Circuit Judge is asking the Supreme Court to say whether, on the true construction of Section 18 of the Act of 1864, the decree given by the District Court should be reversed on the ground that the cheque had been given for an illegal consideration.

The biggest of the High Court lists are those of jury and non-jury cases. There are 44 jury actions, the trial of which will not begin until November 2nd. Thirty-four are running-down actions.

There are three motions to make absolute conditional orders, one relating to ground in Co. Monaghan, one to make absolute a conditional order for mandamus, directed to Drogheda Corporation, to compel the Town Clerk and Returning Officer to accept Mr. James McGrane's declaration of acceptance of office as a member of the Corporation and to give public notice of his election, and one to make absolute a conditional order of mandamus directing the Export and Live Stock Insurance Board to hear a claim of Mr. T. J. Horgan, cattle exporter, Dundanion House, Blackrock, Cork, for £650, the value that he placed on 13 cattle exported by him from Dublin to England last January, and damaged in transit.

REVENUE CASES

There are four special cases stated on the Revenue side, one of them a case stated by District Justice Gleeson, Ennis, who dismissed a charge against Mr. Walter Chapman, that Mr. Chapman, being an officer of Messrs. Jordan, Ltd., Ennis, refused to produce the accounts of the profits of Messrs. L. Jordan, Ltd., Leicester, to the inspector appointed to investigate the affairs of Messrs. Jordan, Ltd., Ennis.

VOTIVE MASS

The annual Votive Mass for the opening of the Michaelmas High Court sitting will be celebrated in St. Michan's, Halston street, on Monday next, October 12, at 10 a.m.

CATTLE BOATS WANTED

Last month 1,600 cattle which might have been shipped from the port of Dublin were diverted to Belfast because of the lack of shipping facilities, said Mr. Michael Berminghma, Chairman of the Irish Live-stock Exporters' Association, at a meeting of the Dublin Port and Docks Board yesterday. Before the war there were two large boats on the Glasgow service, he said, capable of taking 2,000 cattle per week. Now there were two boats only capable of taking 1,200. Mr. Bermingham was asked to give fuller particulars for consideration by the Board at its next meeting.

COOKING FATS

PROBLEM FOR HOUSEWIVES

What has caused the virtual disappearance of fats for cooking? This was one of the questions raised at a well-attended meeting held yesterday by the Dublin Housewives' Committee at the Country Shop. Mrs. J. Coote said that cooking fat, which used to be given free by the butcher with a roast, now had to be paid for. Suet was charged for at 1s. 4d. per pound, and, as a pound of suet rendered down to half a pound for cooking purposes, this meant that fat for cooking was really dearer than butter.

Mrs. S. Manning, who presided, said that this question of fat was going to affect the poor very much. If they did not get sufficient fats, diseases would arise in their children and would spread to all sections of the community.

Mrs. L. Kingston mentioned the high price of potatoes, now 1s. 6d. per stone, although in Northern Ireland they were only 1s. 2d.

Mrs. M. H. Tweedy said she thought that the Housewives' Committee had had some share in bringing about the reduction of oatmeal and sewing cotton prices. If they received the support of housewives they could act with regard to other commodities.

BIG TURNOVER IN RAILS

TRADING on the Dublin Stock Exchange yesterday was again on a good scale, and the tone locally was fairly firm, although in a few cases profit-taking caused prices to slip back. British Industrials attracted a fair measure of attention, but price movements made an irregular showing.

Home Government Funds were well maintained, and 3½ p.c. Fourth National Loan rose to 107. British Funds inclined to harden, with 3½ p.c. War Loan 106⅛. Corporation issues held steady.

In a small Banking group, Bank of Ireland stock improved to 335, Guinness units and Power Deb. held steady and Cairnes Ord. rose to 20/-.

Rails were still in the limelight, and a big turnover took place in most descriptions. Great Northern Ord. firmed up to 26, but the Pref. gave way to 47½. Great Southern Pref. added a fraction and the Gtd. advanced to 46½. Other issues maintained their recent strength.

Tramway issues showed no change and Alliance Gas Ord. moved up to 19/10½. There was renewed strong support for E. and J. Burke issues. The Def. were raised to 1/- and the Pref. jumped 2/- to 7/-. Clondalkin Paper Ord. shaded off to 6/10½.

Irish Times 1st Pref. spurted 1/6 to 40/- and Irish Cinema Ord recovered to 3/3. Irish Wire Products Pref. added pence at 19/3, but Pye (Ireland) Ord. declined to 5/-.

Tobaccos were easier inclined, and B.A.T. Ord. dipped to 87/- and Imperials to 136/6. Courtaulds made headway to 41/9, but Fine Spinners Ord. drooped to 14/4½. Vickers Ord. advanced to 18/7½, while Hawker Siddeley Ord. quoted 17/7½ and R. Thomas Ord. 7/6.

IRISH BUTTER STOCKS

The amount of butter in public cold stores in Eire on September 30, 1942, was 183,306 cwt., compared with 169,762 cwt. on September 15, 1942.

From 16th to 30th September the production of creamery butter was approximately 41,329 cwt. Public cold stores received 9,660 cwt., and withdrawals amounted to 3,523 cwt., leaving a net movement of 6,137 cwt. of creamery butter into public cold stores.

United Dairies.—Final dividend on Ord. of 7½ p.c., making 12½ p.c. Net profit £509,186 (against £504,416).

BRITISH CELANESE DIVIDEND PLAN

BY OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.

DETAILS are published of a plan by British Celanese, Ltd., to deal with accumulated dividend arrears on the 7½ p.c. Participating 2nd Cumulative Pref. shares. The intention is to create £1,700,000 in Funding Certificates, carrying 4 p.c. interest from November 1st next. The Certificates will be issued to holders of the 2nd Pref. shares in nominal amount equivalent to 8/- in respect of each 2nd Pref. share of £1 held. The arrears date from October 30th, 1931, or equal to 8/- per share, after deduction of tax at the present rate. The plan is much in accordance with estimates previously made in the market and will probably be acceptable to shareholders. These shares were an active market yesterday at 27/6, while the 10/- Ord., which have yet to receive a dividend, rose to 14/6.

The £1 shares of United Dairies are 56/-, at which price they yield £4 9/3 p.c. This would seem to be moderate were it not for the exceedingly fine record of the company. Each year from 1931 onwards regular dividends have been paid of 12½ p.c. The final dividend for the year to June 30th last has just been declared at 7½ p.c., again making 12½ p.c. for the year. Profits were £509,186 (against £504,416).

South American Railway Stocks again went ahead strongly in the London Stock Exchange yesterday, but otherwise there was nothing of outstanding interest. Argentine Rail Ordinaries were helped by the good traffic receipts, and gains around 5/- were recorded. The Pref. and Deb. issues made substantial progress. British Railways were firm, and Great Western and L.M.S. Ord. showed further advances, but business in these stocks was distinctly quieter.

A certain amount of profit-taking made the Industrial market irregular. Celanese issues were lively on the dividend arrears plan and profit statement. The Ord. rose to 15/-, but relapsed and finished only 1½d. better. The Second Pref. were steady. Among Breweries Guinness eased 1/-, and Bass and Watney also drooped. A good spot was provided by the Iron and Steel group, where R. Thomas and Babcock and Wilcox were prominent. Associated Cement, Plaster Board and Turner and Newall were bright.

Mines closed irregular, with some small losses in Kaffirs.

Oil Shares turned dull in the late stages, after opening firmly. Anglo-Iranian and Burmah were the principal losers, and others moved irregularly.

IMPORTANT DIVIDEND

A bigger profit and an unchanged Ordinary dividend are announced by the directors of Electric and Musical Industries, Ltd. A preliminary statement covering the year to September 30 last shows a profit of £153,560, compared with £126,581. The Ordinary dividend of 6 p.c. is at the same rate as that paid for the previous year.

WALL STREET

NEW YORK, Thursday.—Stock prices opened firm in moderately active trading. Steels, Rails, Motors, Oils, Coppers and Rubbers were favoured, some reaching new high levels for a year, while several of yesterday's weak Gold Mining issues attracted support and retrieved losses. Buying was attributed to the slightly better war and tax news.

Motion-picture shares responded to news that their blocked funds in Great Britain might be released shortly, and, with considerable activity, numerous issues soared to new peaks. Motors were strong, with Chrysler and General Motors both touching new high levels, while the pivotal stocks finished at the day's best.

The market closed firm.

The sale of a Stock Exchange membership for $24,000 (an increase of $3,000) was followed by another sale at $25,000, equalling the year's high figure.—Reuter.

POLISH ARMY TO-DAY

BY OUR MILITARY CORRESPONDENT.

AT the present time one hears much talk about a Second Front—and little about the Polish Army. Yet it is a safe bet that there will be no second front without a Polish Army. The reason is that, of all the allies, the Poles alone possess the idea of European manœuvre—war without overwhelming superiority in armoured fighting vehicles and aircraft. It may be asserted that they over-estimated the effectiveness of horse cavalry; but, as against this, they have never underestimated the value of foot infantry. Machines are all very well, but in the present war their influence has been over-estimated. Men and commanders also count for something.

UNIFICATION

It has been recently stated that "the unification of all the Polish forces outside this country (Britain) in the Middle East has now been achieved. They are under the command of General Anders, who previously commanded the Polish army in Russia." It would seem from this that those Polish divisions which were formerly in Turkestan have been moved westward, re-equipped, and joined up with those in Palestine. The Tobruk garrison provided a strong force of cadres experienced in modern methods of combat; but, apart from that, the ex-Russian prisoners were already fully trained soldiers. Six divisions has been mentioned as the figure aimed at, and there should be little trouble in reaching and maintaining it.

Simultaneously with this information about the Polish Army in the Middle East there comes another news-item about the Polish troops in Britain. Hitherto General Sikorski had held the three posts of Prime Minister, Commander-in-Chief and Minister of War. He has just handed over this last to General Kukiel "to enable him to concentrate on the problems of high strategy and politics which are his responsibility"—in the other two offices. For, of course, General Kukiel's work will be very largely a matter of administration and routine.

DIEPPE LESSON

General Sikorski has long been recognised as a "second front" leader, who did not require any of the "prodding" recently advocated in high quarters. His most recent pronouncement in this sense was in a broadcast on September 1st. On that occasion he expressed the opinion that: "the Dieppe landing has proved beyond doubt that the invasion of the Continent is feasible." In this context, by the way, it is interesting to quote Mr. Churchill's statement that, in the operation in question, the British tanks "were held up by the altogether unexpected strength of the street blocks." One would have thought that in such a matter there would be no lack of information as to the nature of such obviously essential defences.

In view of recent quite outspoken criticisms of Allied generals and generalship, it is of interest to stress the fact that the personal prestige of General Sikorski stands high on the other side of the Atlantic, both in Canada and the U.S.A. This is all the more significant because the same condition does not obtain to the same extent in the case of others. American military and naval men have, naturally, never posed as specialists in European questions: in the main, their strategy has looked west rather than east. Regarding Europe, it is, as is evident to all, their policy to send qualified observers first of all. The reports of these professional observers can later be used to cross-check information furnished direct by their allies.

MIDDLE EAST

Where, precisely, a considerable Polish army would probably be put into line is an interesting speculation. Such an event might take place in the Caucasus, with a view to advancing westward along the Black Sea, or the move might be in Egypt or the Ægean Islands. For to-day the Allies are putting forth an effort in the Middle East which would have saved them considerable trouble if exerted long ago. These alternatives, of course, apply to the forces of General Anders. The troops stationed in Britain are more likely to be employed in the Baltic region—in direct succession to the Polish brigade which operated in Norway in 1940. They might, it is true, participate in operations further south, though this is, possibly, less likely. The important point to note, however, is—as General Sikorski stated in the broadcast mentioned above—that "today the Polish armed forces abroad are the fifth in number among the Allies"—i.e., after Britain, China, Russia and the United States. They can, further, be classed as all well up to any standards required in troops to take the offensive. Finally, they have never stressed "output"—though quite capable of intelligently utilising any goods delivered.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Four Months for Cycle Thief.—Convicted of stealing a lady's bicycle, John Sullivan, 12 Mannix lane, was, at Cork District Court yesterday, given four months' imprisonment.

"Love on the Dole."—Hilton Edwards and Micheal MacLiammoir's production of the famous play "Love on the Dole," which has opened their season at the Gaiety Theatre, is being retained for a second week.

Want Higher Pig Prices.—South Tipperary Agricultural Committee has unanimously adopted the Limerick resolution calling for the abolition of the Pigs and Bacon Commission, and for an increase in the price of bacon pigs to 140/- per cwt. dead-weight.

Dublin Houses Sold.—At the salerooms, 139 St. Stephen's Green, on Wednesday last, Mr. Gerald Gilbert, M.I.A.A., held a successful auction. Five of the six lots offered sold at satisfactory prices. The lots disposed of included 30 North Great George's street, 28-29 Annesley avenue, 3, 4, 5, 6 Taaffe place, North Strand; 15, 16, 17, 18, 19 Commons street; 24 Mercer street and 123-124 Summerhill.

Omagh Mental Hospital Estimates.—Submitting estimates at the Tyrone-Fermanagh Mental Hospital Committee yesterday the clerk stated that the full amount was £72,500, as compared with £59,400, but he hoped to get £10,000 refunded from the Government, and the net amount would be £57,800, as against £56,588. Estimates had been cut very close, and they might have to apply for an overdraft. The estimates were adopted.

Holidays for Coal Bellman's Helper.—Giving a decree for £3 in favour of Joseph Kinsella, Balrothery, Tallaght, Co. Dublin, in a claim against John Delap, Killining, Firhouse, for wrongful dismissal and failure to allow him holidays with pay, District Justice Reddin, at Kilmainham yesterday, held that a coal bellman's helper was entitled to a week's holiday with pay in any one year.

£3,000 for Publichouse.—The demand for licensed premises is greater than the supply, judging by the attendance of over 200 prospective purchasers in Battersby's property salerooms yesterday, when "Meagher's," 11 Stoneybatter, came under the hammer, by order of the administrator Mr. P. C. Moore, solicitor, Dame street. Bidding started at £1,000, and at £3,000 Captain Peadar Cowen, solicitor, of 67 Dame street, became the purchaser in trust on behalf of a client.

GOVERNMENT NOTICES.

NOTICE TO PERSONS MILLING WHEAT.

Millers generally are affected by Emergency Powers (No. 165) Order, 1942 (Second Amendment) Order, 1942, which was made by the Government on the 6th October, 1942. The Order makes it illegal for holders of Milling (Home-Grown Wheat) Permits to accept wheat or any product of wheat as a reward for any milling or other services rendered by them.

It prohibits holders of Milling Licences or Milling (Home-Grown Wheat) Permits from milling any mixture of cereals which contains wheat.

The Order also empowers the Minister for Industry and Commerce by permit to authorise growers of wheat who have been in the habit of milling flour or wheaten meal for their regular employees—either by way of sale or as an emolument—to continue to do so within certain limits.

The Order will be published in due course, and copies may be purchased from the Government Publications Sale Office, 3 College street, Dublin, or through any bookseller.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

THE TAILOR AND ANSTEY

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—Nothing in years has so shocked me as the ban on "The Tailor and Anstey," Mr. Cross's faithful transcript of the memories and fancies of an old Cork seanchaidhe. For as long as most of us remember, the home of Tailor Buckley and his wife has been the haunt of students of Irish, priest and layman; of writers, painters and sculptors. Whatever the great-hearted old couple had—and it was little enough, God knows—they gave like princes, and in that little cottage of theirs there was always music and poetry and legend and good talk for whoever cared for such things. Their little home had become famous, and people wrote from distant countries to remind them of their existence. And now, at the end of their days, an Irish Minister, acting on the advice of an Irish Censorship Board, has proclaimed that the gay and wise and fantastic talk that delighted so many is "in its general tendency indecent." This is not an occasion to discuss the rights and wrongs of censorship. The verdict is as cruel as it is false, but I believe it was arrived at without thinking of the pain it must cause. Of course, if Mr. Cross or any of the Tailor's friends who read the manuscript could have imagined such madness, the book would not have been published during the lifetime of himself or Anstey. But the harm has been done, and now I can only beg those members of the Government I know and the Catholic writers and artists whose opinion will weigh against that of any committee to do all they can to undo it while there is still time. The Tailor and Anstey are the last of their kind; they represent dead generations of Irishmen and women, and we of the new Ireland should show them at the end something of their own great charity and courtesy.—Yours, etc.,

FRANK O'CONNOR.

ROUAULT

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—The principal function of a public art gallery is to illustrate the development of art by competent examples of successive schools. If a picture adequately represents a significant movement not otherwise or insufficiently represented in the gallery, and if it is not indecent or blasphemous, it is entitled to admission. The personal predilections which determine the purchase of a private collector should not control the conduct of a public gallery. Whether anyone should or should not like to have a particular picture in his own house does not enter into the question.

Rouault is a recognised leader of the Expressionist movement in modern art. His status is confirmed by the directors of the leading galleries of modern art in France, in the United States, in England, and in Germany, in which his pictures hang.

This movement, of which he is a leader, is unrepresented in the Dublin Municipal Gallery of Art—a fact which naturally influenced the Council of the Friends of the National Collections in acquiring the picture "Christ and the Soldier," which has become the subject of controversy.

It is to be noted that among those who voted for its purchase are the President of the Royal Hibernian Academy and the Director of the National Gallery.

With regard to the suggestion that the religious art of Rouault or the particular picture which has been rejected by the Art Advisory Committee of the Dublin Corporation is blasphemous, the known facts with regard to Rouault's life, inspiration and intention peremptorily deny the possibility.

The most eminent Catholic artists working on religious subjects in France are Rouault, Maurice Denis and Desvallières.

The practice of Maurice Denis is in a different tradition from the other two, but all three and Rouault very explicitly have received the commendation and support of Jacques Maritain, Emile Focillon and Louis Gillet, Catholic writers on art of European reputation, whose authority stands very high.

The art of Rouault has deep roots in the Catholic tradition. Its fellows and forbears are to be found in primitive Christian art, in the Byzantine and Gothic artists, in mediæval glass and in Irish sculpture from an early date to the sixteenth century.—Yours, etc.,

JOSEPHINE MCNEILL, Hon. Secretary to the Council of the Friends of the National Collections.

Prisoners of War

Nothing is more pathetic in times of war than the lot of the prisoners. They get no glory; for them the war is at an end from the moment when they fall into the hands of their enemies. They are completely at the mercy of their captors, and when the war is over they come home—if they survive their ordeal—unhonoured and unsung. We are reminded of the plight of war prisoners of every nationality by a statement issued from the British War Office yesterday. During the last week-end, it seems, there was a "Commando" raid on the Island of Sark, in the course of which the British raiders took a number of German prisoners. According to German reports, the hands of these prisoners were bound with string, in defiance of Article 2 of the Geneva Convention, which stipulates that prisoners of war shall "at all times be humanely treated, and protected particularly against acts of violence, from insults, and from public curiosity." This Article also prohibits any form of reprisal against prisoners. As a result of the British troops' alleged treatment of the Germans on Sark, the German Government announced that it would place all British and Canadian prisoners who had been captured at Dieppe in chains, unless it should receive satisfactory assurances from London regarding the Sark affair. It has not been satisfied with the attitude of the British Government, and announced yesterday that the British and Canadians had been chained. Now the British Government has taken action. It stated last evening that, unless the British and Canadian prisoners should be released from their chains, an equal number of German prisoners in British and Canadian hands would be manacled as from noon to-morrow; and there, for the moment, the matter rests. It is a pitiable business. Once warring Governments start reprisals, no man can tell where the process will end. During the last war, when German U-boat crews were confined in underground quarters in Edinburgh Castle the German Government put certain British prisoners of war into dark cells, but, fortunately, the intervention of neutral Governments put an early stop to the vicious circle that was threatened at the time. The trouble to-day is that there are no neutral Powers with sufficient influence or strength to bring real pressure to bear on the belligerents; and it looks as if the unfortunate prisoners on both sides must be the victims of a senseless system of reprisals. Two wrongs never yet made a right. The prisoners' lot already is sufficiently hard, in all conscience, whether they be British or Germans. Surely the International Red Cross authorities ought to be in a position to discover whether or not the provisions of the Geneva Convention are being observed by both sides, and to convince Berlin and London that reprisals of all kinds not only are unnecessary, but illegal. In cases of this kind the distress caused to the prisoners themselves is almost negligible compared with that inflicted on their relatives and friends at home. In common with all civilised people, we hope that this unhappy business will be stopped without further ado.

The Mount Street Club

"We contend that there is nothing, from boots and houses to health and happiness, that cannot be produced by co-operative methods in an atmosphere of goodwill."

This sentence is the striking conclusion to the report which was submitted at last night's meeting of the Mount Street Club Society. It may be a trifle extravagant; there are many things, from nuts and screws to electric pylons, which require more in the making than co-operation and good-will. Nevertheless, the Deputy Chairman had every right to make such a statement; for the Mount Street Club has demonstrated, beyond yea or nay, how essentially true it is. The Club is no longer "news," as it was in the Press of England and America, not to mention Ireland, only a few years ago; it has passed beyond the stage of an experiment and has established itself as a part of the national being. It began as a theory, which, like all sound theories, has endured the test of practical operation. Readers of this newspaper are familiar with the fundamentals of the Mount Street Club. It is a club for unemployed, who contribute—or, until last year, contributed—nothing to it except their labour. In return they receive no money; they receive credit, in the form of "tallies" which may be exchanged against the Club's products. Thus, a man may mend shoes and be paid in potatoes; he may cook enough dinners to entitle himself to a suit of clothes; he may help to grow wheat and obtain turf in return—all through the medium of these "tallies," which are, in effect, the simplest form of currency. To a very remarkable degree the Mount Street Club is self-supporting. It possesses a splendid farm—one of the most productive farms in the whole country—from which 33½ acres of wheat, 30 acres of potatoes and 50 acres of other crops are being harvested at present. It produces its own milk, butter, eggs, pork and bacon. It rents a bog at Carbury and brings its own turf to Dublin by canal. It serves many thousands of meals in the year. It makes and mends clothes, mends and makes boots and shoes, knits socks, spins tweed, manufactures furniture of wood and willow. All of these operations are conducted by members for the benefit of members. The Mount Street Club, in a sentence, is a microcosm of the self-sufficient State—or of a State as self-sufficient as it is possible that a State should be. It is not entirely independent of external help. Men can farm land, but they cannot make it. They cannot acquire building materials for nothing. It is inevitable that, as the club has extended its activities, it has found itself in need of money. Hence, in order of time, have followed the establishment of the Mount Street Club Society—which has been helping from the early days—a grant of State assistance, and, as a condition thereof, a weekly subscription of 6d. from the members. Nevertheless, we doubt if ever previously in Ireland so much wealth has been produced with so little expenditure of money. The "austere" State of the years to come may not be too proud to seek guidance from the experience of the Mount Street Club.

Britain's Food

From the moment when an Irish visitor sets foot in Great Britain, he is conscious of a new atmosphere—the atmosphere of a nation at war. The change is more conspicuous in the city than in the countryside; the multitude of uniforms, the frequent presence of queues, the occasional glimpse of ruin—all bear witness to the ordeal through which the United Kingdom is passing. Yet, if he is at all observant, the visitor will notice that the war has not been without its effect upon the countryside as well. His train runs, as often as not, in the midst of ploughed and tilled land which once was grassland, through grassland which only a couple of years ago was derelict. The farmers, both professional and amateur, of Great Britain have made a remarkable effort. At the very outset of the war—when Britain's strategy still was notable for lack of foresight—her Government was acute enough to realise that the decisive factor in her prospects might be her supply of food, and the first steps were taken to increase the nation's production of foodstuffs of all kinds. Great strides have been made since then. Within three years the arable acreage has been increased by more than fifty per cent.—from 8,000,000 to 13,000,000 acres—and that is only a part of the story. The programme of the British Ministry of Agriculture was summarised this week by Lord Cornwallis at the centenary meeting of the Farmers' Club, which was attended by the Minister himself. The first step, so successfully undertaken, was to increase the acreage of ploughed land. The second was to improve the standard of farming; in other words, to obtain a higher yield from arable land and grassland alike. That, said Lord Cornwallis, was a more difficult task, but he was confident that, as a result of skilled advice, production per acre had been increased by more than five per cent.; and, if the five per cent. of land thus saved were used for the growing of wheat, no fewer than 1,500,000 tons of shipping would be saved. The third stage of the Government's campaign was the hardest of all; its object was to increase the production of crops for human food without any decrease in the number of livestock. That object, too, has been achieved to a very substantial extent. These results must be extremely gratifying to Mr. Churchill's Government; but the inconvenient people who keep an eye to the future are beginning already to ask whether an attempt will be made to maintain the new standards of agriculture after the war. They do not want to see an agricultural "boom" for the duration of hostilities, followed by neglect, a severe "slump," and the depopulation of the countryside later—as happened after the Great War of 1914-'18. Instead, they ask for the establishment of a policy which will allow the farmer an opportunity of prosperity; and, in return, they admit that he must be prepared to accept a certain measure of Government control. The Government has not yet declared its plans for the future, but to commit the same mistake twice would be a crime. As Lord Cornwallis phrases it, if the British Government is not willing to honour its two-year-old pledge to maintain after the war "a healthy and well-balanced agriculture as a permanent feature of national policy," the nation deserves to starve.

A DUBLIN PAINTER

WORK OF MR. G. W. YEATES

The Irish landscape section of the Municipal Gallery has received a notable addition in the gift of nine very good oil-paintings by an Irish artist who died in 1939, after having painted for fifty years almost unknown to the general public. He was George W. Yeates, a medical graduate of Trinity College, Dublin, who practised as a dentist in Baggot street for many years, and devoted most of his leisure time to the art of painting. His work was known and appreciated by such painters as Walter Osborne and Miss Sarah Purser; but to the general public he was almost unknown. Now, however, a selection of examples of his work is on view through the generosity of his friend and admirer, Captain H. C. Hall, of Donabate, who offered the Curator of the Gallery (Mr. J. F. Kelly) his choice from a collection of thirty Yeates paintings. Mr. Kelly made his selection, chiefly of landscapes done in Counties Dublin, Wicklow and Donegal, and for the last few days they have been hung in one of the public galleries of Charlemont House.

In the same room are three other good pictures, also given by Captain Hall—an English landscape, by Bernard Priestman, R.A., which was reproduced in The Artist in March, 1933; "Towards Murano," an Italian scene, by Emma Ciardi (1879-1933), and "Street at Royat," by Charles Frere (1815-1888).

Yesterday the late Mr. Yeates's son, Mr. George Andrew Yeates, who has followed his father both in his vocation and in his avocation, gave an Irish Times reporter some details of his father's career. He did not begin to paint until he was almost thirty years of age, and the first picture he painted—one of a field of haystacks near the Rectory at Lissan, Cookstown, County Tyrone, where his father was Rector—is still in his son's possession. The painter whom he admired most was Walter Osborne. His work was greatly influenced by that of Osborne, and the resemblance can be seen in some of the paintings now in Charlemont House. Often the two used to go out together on painting expeditions. Other painters in whom he was interested were the Irish-American painter, Fisher, and Perick Williams. He used to go over to London every year to the Royal Academy Exhibition to see, among other things, the latest examples of their work. He continued painting almost up to the time of his death.

The son is greatly pleased that his father's work now has been recognised in the city where he spent most of his life. He thinks that the selection in Charlemont House is a very representative one.

OBITUARY

MRS. NEILL-WATSON

Mrs. H. C. Neill-Watson, who died on Sunday last at her residence, Cualann, Carrickmines, Co. Dublin, was for many years an active worker on social problems in Dublin, and was especially interested in the question of school meals for children. Along with her husband, Mr. H. C. Neill-Watson, of the Court Laundry, Dublin, she was one of the first members of the Irish Labour Party, from her interest in which she was able to acquire a very real knowledge and understanding of the problems of people in the low-income groups. A member of the Methodist Church, she was also an ardent pacifist, and was founder of the Irish Anti-War Crusade, and helped the establishment in Dublin of a branch of the Fellowship of Reconciliation. Among her other interests was included the secretaryship of the Kilternan Branch of the Irish Countrywomen's Association.

CANON R. C. PATTEN

Canon Richard Cecil Patten, who died at Cottage Hospital, Clonmel, was Rector of Fethard, Co. Tipperary, for about forty years. He is survived by Mrs. Patten, two daughters and a son.

CRUISKEEN LAWN

By Myles Na gCopaleen

IT is now sixteen or seventeen years since I saw the queen of France, then the dauphiness, at Versailles; and surely never lighted on this orb, which she hardly seemed to touch, a more delightful vision. I saw her just above the horizon, decorating and cheering the elevated sphere which she just began to move in; glittering like the morning star, full of life, and splendour, and joy——

The Plain People of Ireland: Sure that wan went to the wall years ago, you must be mixin' her up with some other party.

Myself: For me the Queen of France never died.

The Plain People of Ireland: And if it's above the horizon you seen her, that's fair enough, many's a man seen more than the queen of France and him out in a boat fishin', coopers of stout and sandwiches, half fallin' out of the boat rotten fluthery-eyed drunk on porter and whiskey, sure is it any wonder you're seein' visions man? Sure Lord save us you'll be Napolean Boneypart himself next above in the Grange weedin' turnips.

Myself: I was at a wake the other night and every man jack was drunk—including the corpse.

The Plain People of Ireland: O faith now never mind the wakes, many's a better man than you was happy enough at home be the fire with Knocknagow or a good American cowboy story, there's a very bad type of person goin' around now that wasn't known in our fathers' day.

Well, I can't see what all the fuss was about.

You read it, did you?

I couldn't see any harm at all in it there was nothing in it.

I tried to get it many a time meself. . .

There's no harm in it at all.

Many's a time I promised meself I'd look that up and get it.

Nothing at all that anybody could object to, not a thing in it from the first page to the last.

It's banned, o' course.

Not a thing in it that anybody could object to, NO HARM AT ALL IN IT, nothing at all anywhere in the whole thing.

O indeed many's a time I tried to get it meself.

"LOVERS' LEAP"

On Monday next, 12th inst., at the Peacock Theatre, Stanley Illsley (back from a four months' tour with E.N.S.A., entertaining the troops in the North of Ireland), in management with Leo McCabe, is presenting the first production in Eire of the West-End comedy success of a few years ago, "Lovers' Leap," by Phillip Johnson. Playing one of the leading parts will be Miss Mabel Home, so popular and well-known in Dublin theatrical circles for her playing of light opera and musical comedy rôles.

Miss Home has a splendid comedy part, to which her talents should be admirably suited—that of a grass widow who endeavours to lure back her husband from Egypt and its excavating attractions, with very amusing results.

Playing opposite Miss Home are Leo McCabe and Stanley Illsley, with Iris Lawler (a very talented newcomer) and Audrey Gill to make up feminine support.

The play will be produced by Stanley Illsley.

LONDON LETTER

59 FLEET STREET, LONDON,
THURSDAY NIGHT.

THE Parliamentary draughtsmen have had to go back to Henry VIII. to find the Act (about to be repealed) which forbade the use of Welsh in the courts. The text of the Welsh Courts Bill, published to-day, will remove any doubt as to the right of Welsh-speaking persons to testify in their language in Welsh courts of justice, and will enable rules to be made for the administration of oaths and affirmations in the Welsh tongue. The Welsh Parliamentary Party have worked long and hard for this bill; they forgot their ordinary political distinctions to work unitedly in a Welsh cause. Welsh now may be spoken in the courts, and interpreters may be provided where necessary at the public expense, but the question of the use of Welsh in official business apart from the courts remains open.

To Help the Tuberculous

Mr. Ernest Brown, Minister of Health, announced in the House to-day that financial help will be given to persons with dependants who have to give up work temporarily during treatment for tuberculosis. He added that, to facilitate early diagnosis, priority had been obtained for the supply of thirty sets of equipment for mass radiography, which were being allocated to large centres of population, and would begin to operate in the new year. Mr. Brown's announcement coincides with the publication to-day of the report of Lord Dawson's Committee on Tuberculosis in Wartime. The Committee say that the factors affecting the increase in tuberculosis in war-time include overcrowding, nutritional deficiencies, black-out conditions and evacuation, particularly of town populations to the country, resulting in many children previously supplied with pasteurised milk receiving raw milk. The report shows that before the war more than six out of every hundred farms were sending out milk containing tubercle bacilli, and the inference that virtually all bulked milk has been affected has been proved to be correct. "If all milk for human consumption were pasteurised," says the report, "it is no exaggeration to say that tuberculosis of bovine origin would be eliminated."

Mass Radiography

The Committee point out that to discover the disease before symptoms develop, the initiative for X-Ray examination should pass from the patient to the doctor, and this can be effected only by mass radiography. No fewer than 3,000 examinations a week can be taken by each camera, and often with early diagnosis the periods of treatment required will be relatively short. Mass radiography should be applied to persons about to enter a new employment, to prevent the entry of those with active pulmonary tuberculosis. The Committee add that a factor which has helped to bring about the present unsatisfactory position was the taking over of many sanitorium beds at the outbreak of war to make room for air raid casualties. Finally Lord Dawson and his experts make detailed recommendations for industrial rehabilitation, and they condemn the present inadequate national health benefit, which amounts to only 10s. 6d. a week.

Gold "Down the Field"

The War Productions Board of the United States, a country whose vaults now hold the world's greatest accumulation of gold, announces to-day the stoppage of all gold mining, so as to free men, machines and metal for the war. Gold is no longer important, at least for war, and it is more sensible that men should mine copper, zinc and other metallic sinews of war, especially copper, than that they should increase their "sterilised" hoard of gold. This glittering hoard, however, will continue to grow, as Canada, South Africa and Russia are paying for United States imports by sending gold at the present price of 175 shillings an ounce. Although some Canadian experts have urged the cessation of gold mining there for more than a year past, most of the gold mines there also produce large tonnages of base metals needed for war, and gold mining is to be continued.

Beet Production

The County of Fife, which accounts for one-third of Scotland's acreage of beet, is aiming to achieve an increase of two tons an acre of clean beet over this year's average yield of eight tons an acre. Five thousand acres will again be sown. Experiments in manures there indicate that, with nitrogen and agricultural salt, which can be had in abundance, it is possible to to do without much potash and phosphate, which are severely rationed commodities.

Lunch-time Concerts

Because the historic hall of the Royal Exchange, which has a stone floor, and no heating arrangements of any kind, is becoming too cold, the lunch-time concerts by vocal and instrumental celebrities which have been taking place there will conclude to-morrow. Nearly 30,000 people have attended, and the organisers, who greatly appreciate the support they have received from city workers, are arranging for a resumption in the spring.

AN IRISHMAN'S DIARY

Hunting

In another month hunting will be in full swing in this country. It is unlikely that the transport difficulties will interfere seriously with the sport; for the essential ingredient in this activity is the horse, not the train or motor car.

Indeed, when the train still was regarded as an interloper and champions of the stage coach were defending its virtues in the Press of 1838, there was more hunting in Ireland than there has been in recent years. In 1941-1942 sixty-eight or sixty-nine packs were operating in this country; in the 1838-1859 season the number was 128.

Only six Irish counties were without their hunts in those great days, the six being Wicklow, Waterford, Sligo, Leitrim, Monaghan and Cavan. Counties Cork and Dublin led with twenty-two packs each, Galway had ten, Antrim and Limerick had nine each, and Tipperary had eight.

Last year we had two packs of staghounds, Ward Union and County Down; one hundred years ago there were three—Ward Union, hunted by Messrs. Alley; a pack hunted by Mr. Loughlin in Co. Cork, and The Limerick, hunted by Mr. M. Yarrell.

Old Packs

It is well-known that many Irish packs of foxhounds and harriers have their roots far back in the past. One hundred years ago The Island, The Meath, The Kildare, The Duhallow, The Old Rock, and some others which still exist, were going strong. To-day we miss the Howth Hill, the Frankford Socials, and the Summerhill, all of which hunted in County Dublin.

The Ward Union, which had just changed over from hunting captive foxes in 1838, were a lively crowd. The hunting correspondent of an English sporting magazine wrote of them: "These hounds go faster than any I ever saw, anywhere; in fact, it resembles steeplechasing."

Of course, the West was the great place for desperate hunting in the old days. Maxwell, in his "Wild Sports," writes of Connaught walls six feet high taken at racing speed, "and that, too, in the middle of a bunch of gentlemen, who would ride over an adopted child."

A Zoo Artist

A rare intellectual treat awaits the brace of crocodiles at the Zoo when they are moved to their new home in the reptile house in a few weeks.

Not only will they be enabled to uncoil fully their scaly eight and twelve feet of body, respectively, but their enraptured eyes, if they have the least æsthetic sense, will revel in painted scenery recalling the old jungle days. A hot and sandy tropical shore, with palm trees, scrub and bananas, will beautify the walls of the enclosure, so deftly painted that the onlookers themselves will be enabled to share the illusion.

The artist is Miss Pamela Cotton, a cousin of M. Louis Le Brocquy, the well-known artist, and herself a skilful painter. Miss Cotton studied at Geneva and the Dublin School of Art, and received much encouragement from the late Julius Olsson, who gave her her first box of paints.

Nurseries

Recently she has been decorating nurseries for those who desire their offspring to acquire something more than the usual nursery lore, with its tales of recalcitrant juvenile porkers and preternaturally wise wolves with bellows-like lungs. She has decorated the walls of these rooms with perfectly delightful penguins and other winning fowl so that the happy children will grow up with a knowledge of natural history.

Great pains have been taken by Miss Cotton and Mr. Flood, the Curator of the Zoo, to secure the right type of vegetation, and hardy empire-builders and globe trotters fresh from the wild spaces have been enlisted to give advice as to scenery, colour of skies and so forth.

Feet of endurance

There's nothing worse for health and nerves than painful feet. The body's weight is taken by the foot-arch, balanced on great toe, little toe and heel. If this arch loses its elasticity, every step jars. Fatigue increases. Headaches develop. You end the day dead beat. Perhaps corns are your trouble. Corns, like bunions and callouses, usually indicate some fundamental foot weakness which only experts can detect. If you want freedom from pain, visit Scholl Foot Service.*

There, in privacy, your feet are tested by experts; never satisfied until they reach the root of your foot trouble. With patient, soothing treatment they put you on the high road to perfect health. Give yourself feet of endurance! Consult Scholl's. Advice is free, treatment inexpensive.

KILL ACID AND END CONSTIPATION

When your stomach is full of excess acid it simply cannot digest your food. Every mouthful sours your whole meal lies in your stomach a fermenting, lumpy mass. You get wind, nausea, heartburn—CONSTIPATION. Constipation imprisons the poisonous and waste matter inside your bowels, soaks your whole system with acid and starts the vicious circle of torture all over again.

But you can break free if, first, you get rid of the acid.

For years doctors have been recommending the safe brand of antacid 'Milk of Magnesia' as a laxative because it has a double action. The acid in the system is killed. More important still, the bowel is gently relaxed and both cause and effect of constipation move gently out of the system. With the bowels regular and the stomach free from acid, stomach, liver, and bowels have a chance to do their job.

So remember that constipation and bad digestion are both due to excess acid. As soon as there is the slightest hint of too much acid, take a spoonful of 'Milk of Magnesia.' Do it for several days and watch how appetite improves, how much more regular you are. And you will wonder how anything so bland and gentle can be so promptly effective. 'Milk of Magnesia' is the trade mark of Phillips' preparation of Magnesia. There is nothing else like it. Try it to-day: you'll be delighted. Obtainable everywhere, 1/3 and 2/6 (treble size), also in tablet form. 'Milk of Magnesia' brand Tablets, 6d., 1/-, 2/- and 3/6. Each tablet is the equivalent of a teaspoonful of the liquid preparation.

Going Grey? Restore Natural Colour this Easy Way

Don't let time mark you out by greying your hair. Put back the clock by giving your hair back its natural youthful colour. It's easy, inexpensive, safe, quick. Make up the following mixture: To a bare half-pint of water add one ounce of Bay Rum. Then mix in contents of one small box Orlex Compound. Finally add a quarter ounce of glycerine. Any chemist can supply these ingredients or make up the mixture. Applied twice weekly this non-greasy, non-sticky, non-rub mixture soon gives your hair the glow of youthful colour—and it doesn't colour the scalp. Get rid of grey hair. Start to-day—the Orlex way.
